

Veterans Day

The nation pauses . . .

*Once again in reverent thought
Of servicemen, the staunch and brave;
Of battlefields and victories won;
A cross above an honored grave.*

The nation pauses . . .

*Once again in fervent prayer
That peace, once won by blood and tears,
May live beyond the holocaust
Of nuclear bombs in distant spheres.*

The nation pauses . . .

*Once again to honor those
Who fought for right and liberty.
Theirs be the cause; may right prevail
On high flung wings to victory.*

From "After This Harvest", Copyright 1964 Elvina Granlie McNamara, Triangle Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas.